LETTER STYLE DEFINITIONS

V-Sunk - The most widely used lettering style, useful when lettering in sawn surfaces or frosted panels. Also, when blasting a light colored stone that is polished. Letters form in a "V" shape.

Shallow Sunk - Best used in a dark colored stone, polished surface. Letters are 1/16"+ in depth.

U-Sunk - This style is a medium between Shallow Sunk and V-Sunk. Letters form a "U" shape, applied to polish.

Skin Sunk - Best used in a dark colored stone, polished surface. Letters are 1/32" in depth.

Polish Inlaid - This style uses Outline Roman font and is preferred in medium contrast stone colors. The letter is polished with a thin V-Sunk outline.

Frosted Inlaid - This style is not recommended to be used on black stones because the contrast is too great. Stones of medium contrast are preferred. The Outline Roman font is frosted with a thin V-Sunk outline.

Polish Raised - Letters sit in a 1/8" - 3/16" deep blasted panel and are polished and flush with the stone surface.

Polish Edge - This application uses Polish Edge font and is best in panels. There is a thin V-Sunk line in the center of the polished letter.

Shadow Bar - Commonly used for family names on a polished surface in Roman Shaded font. Two sides of the letters have a wider outline than Frosted Inlaid, thus giving a 3D shadowed effect. Numbers unavailable and not for use on black stones.
